FCC Mail Room

Dear Sir:

I understand that the FCC is considering dismantling the switched telephone network. I would like to register my extreme opposition to that proposal. I definitely feel the switched telephone network should be maintained. If anything it should be made more available to those who have need of it.

I am severely electromagnetically sensitive and radiation sensitive. I have a very difficult time accessing simple necessary things like grocery stores, banks, libraries etc. because I can't be near cell phones, computers, or fluorescent lights. I can't even use a cordless phone. If I couldn't have a landline I couldn't even call 911 in a physical or medical emergency! I understand that there are millions of Americans in the same situation that I am in. Furthermore there are many millions more elderly or mentally handicapped Americans who aren't capable of learning this new technology. I can also imagine there are millions more Americans who don't allow their young children near cellphones for health safety reasons.

I feel this proposal would be a step toward mass genocide.

I thought I lived in America.

I do hope you will reject this proposal.

Sincerely,

Betty Wade
